

capacity development for indigenous peoples creates impacts to indigenous organizations and enhances advocacy of indigenous peoples

Maribeth V Bugtong-Biano
ELATIA Indigenous Peoples' Training Institute

(c) Lelewal

(c) CIPRED

sustainable self-determined development of indigenous peoples

(c) Tebtebba

(c) Lelewal

(c) ILEPA

(c) SILDAP-SE

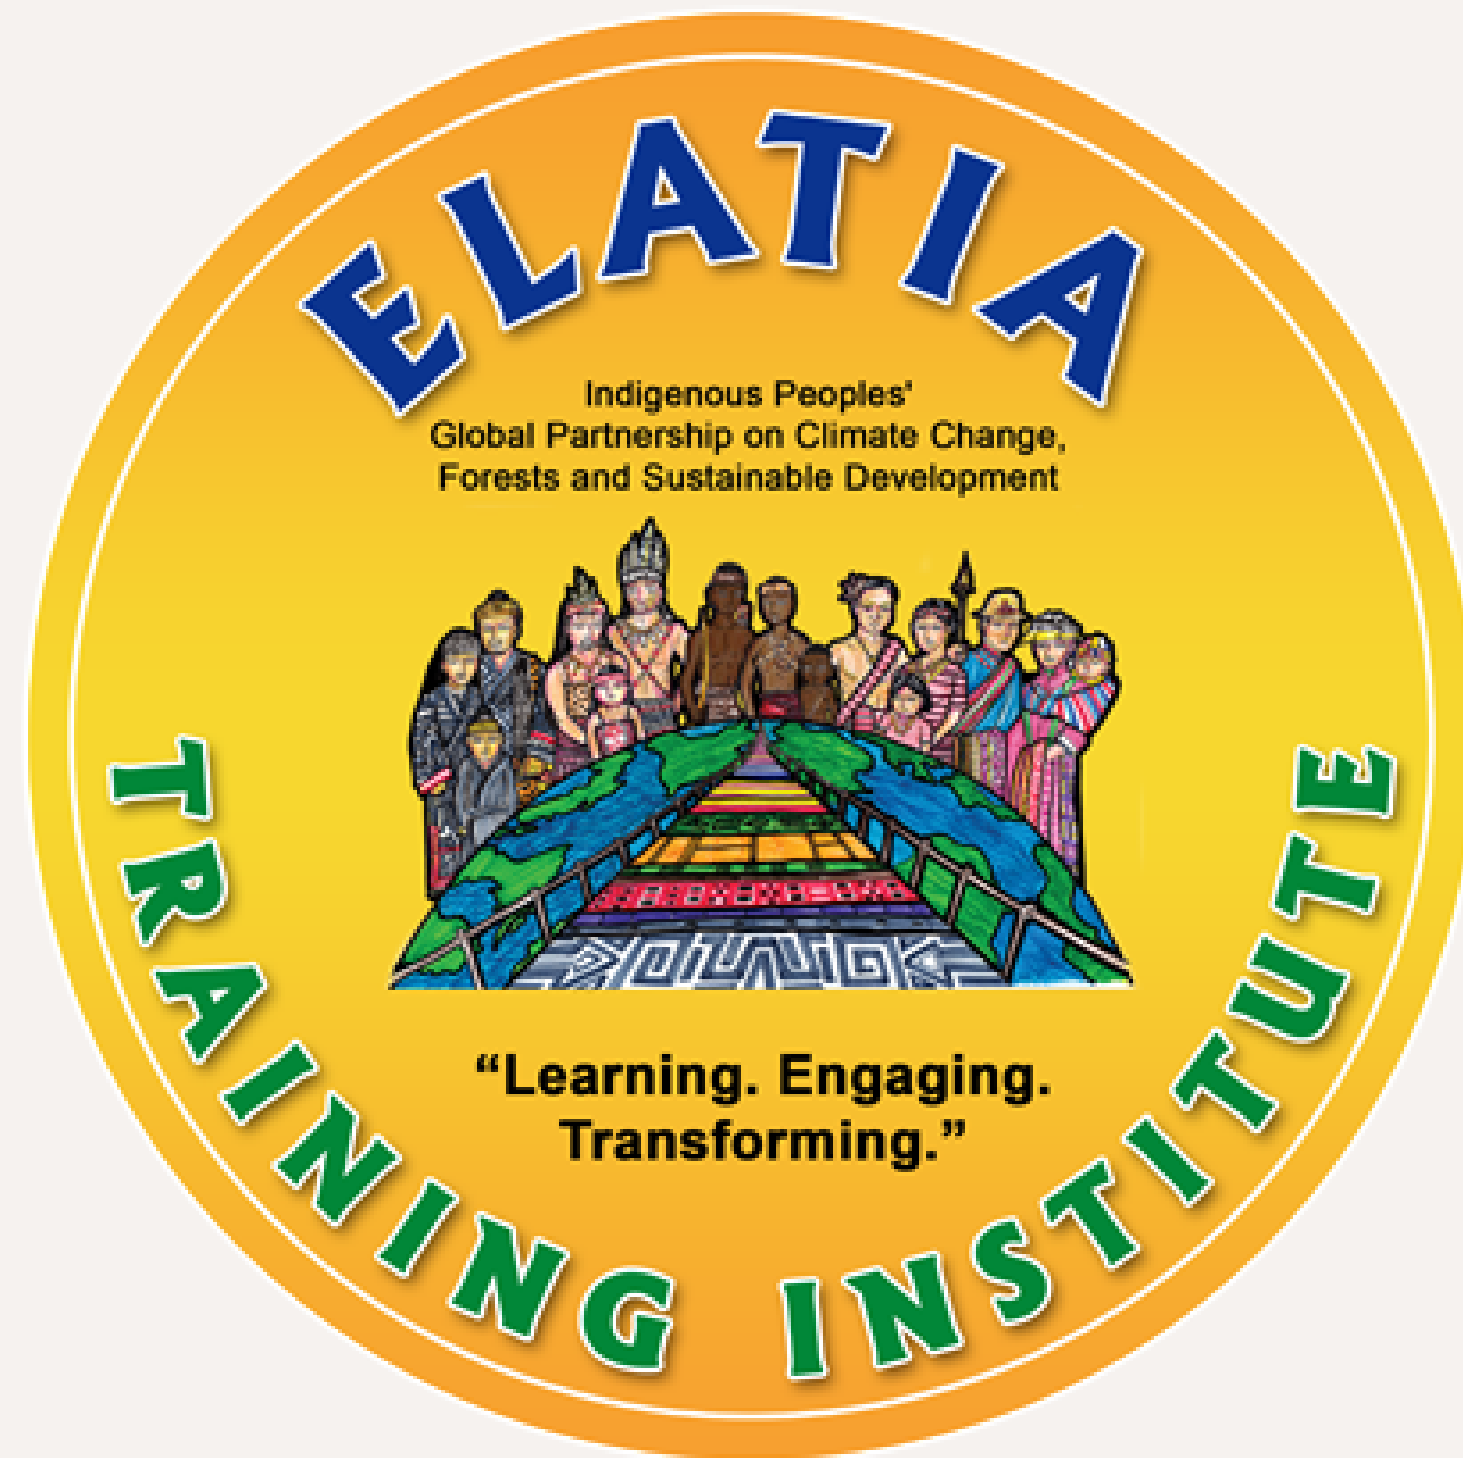

(c) CHIRAPAQ

(c) Tebtebba

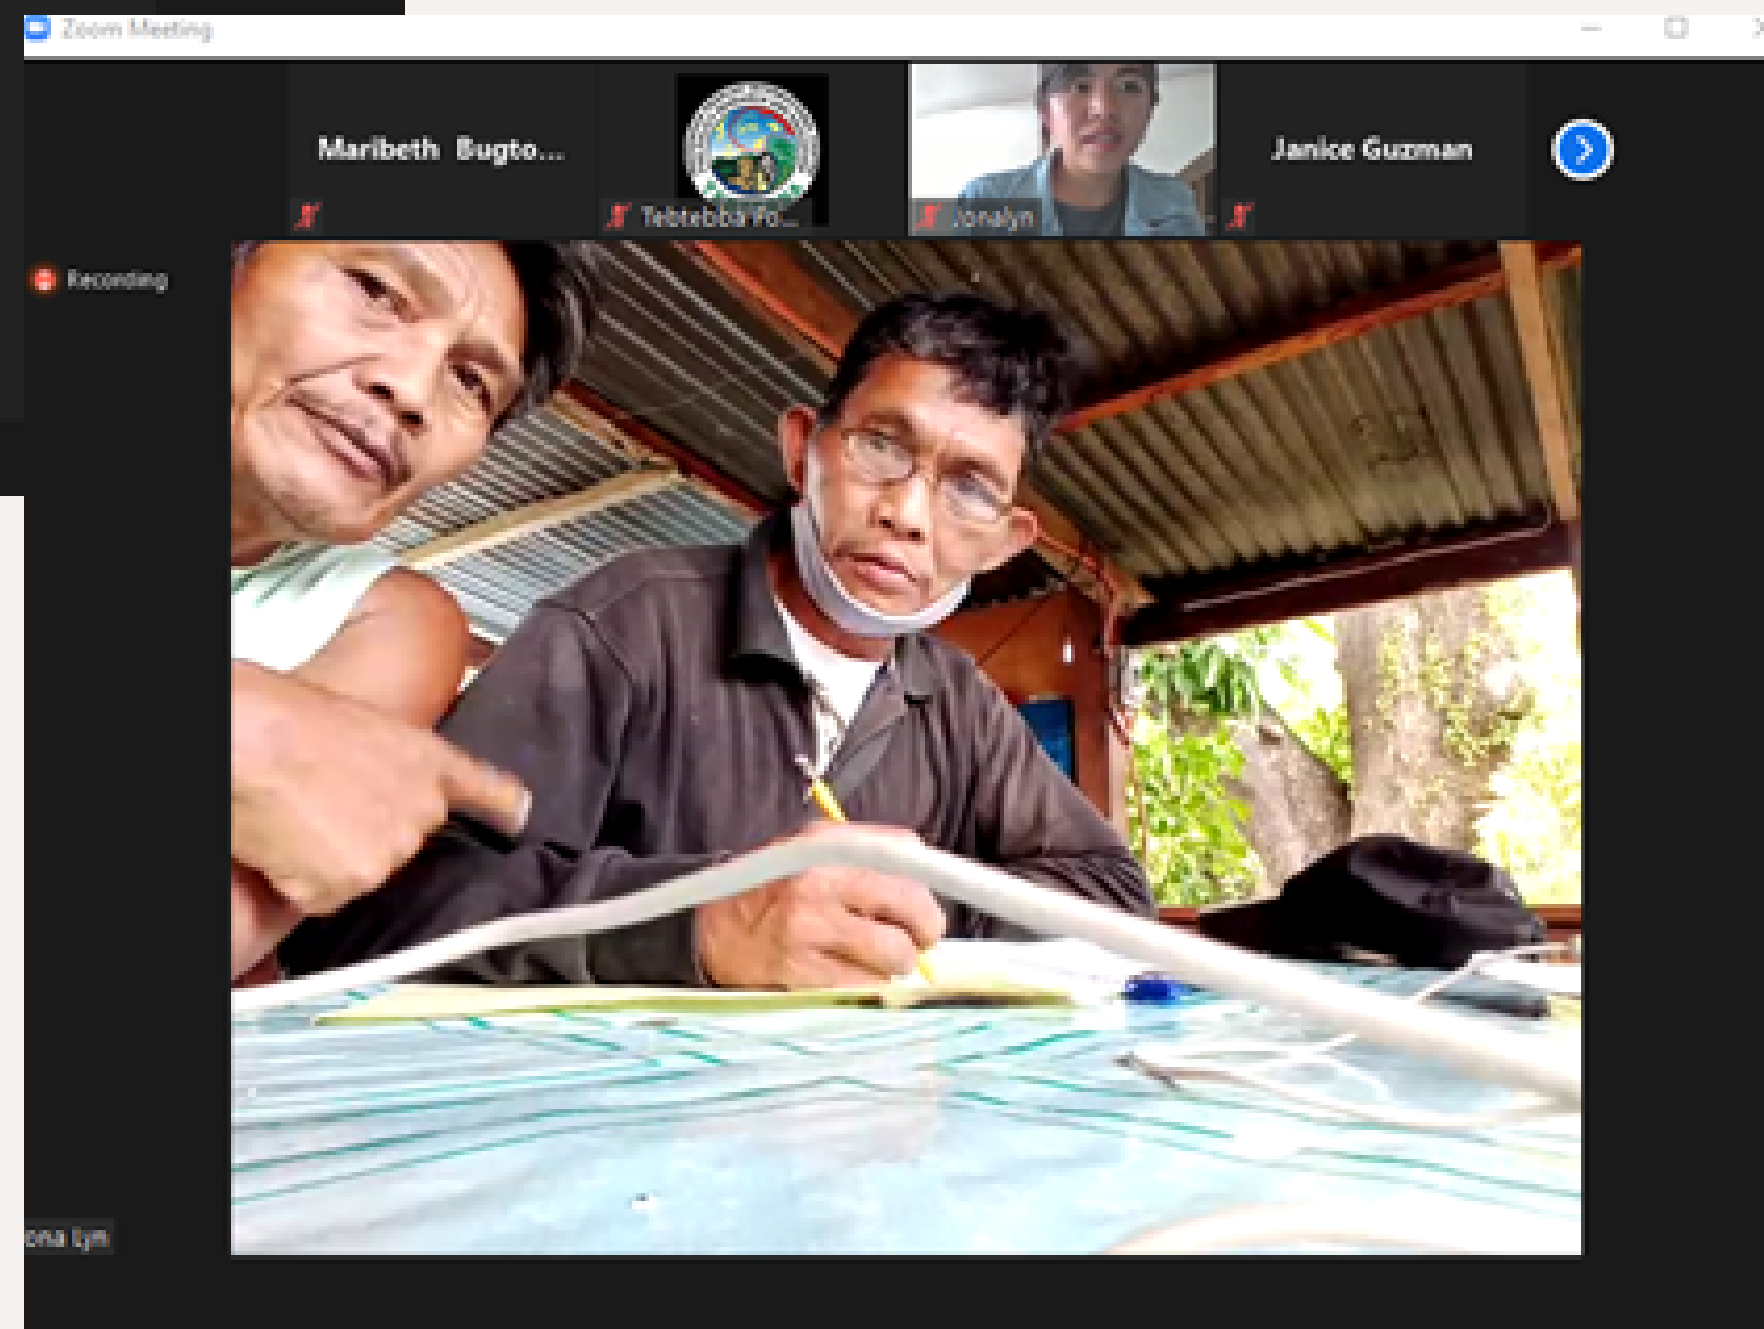

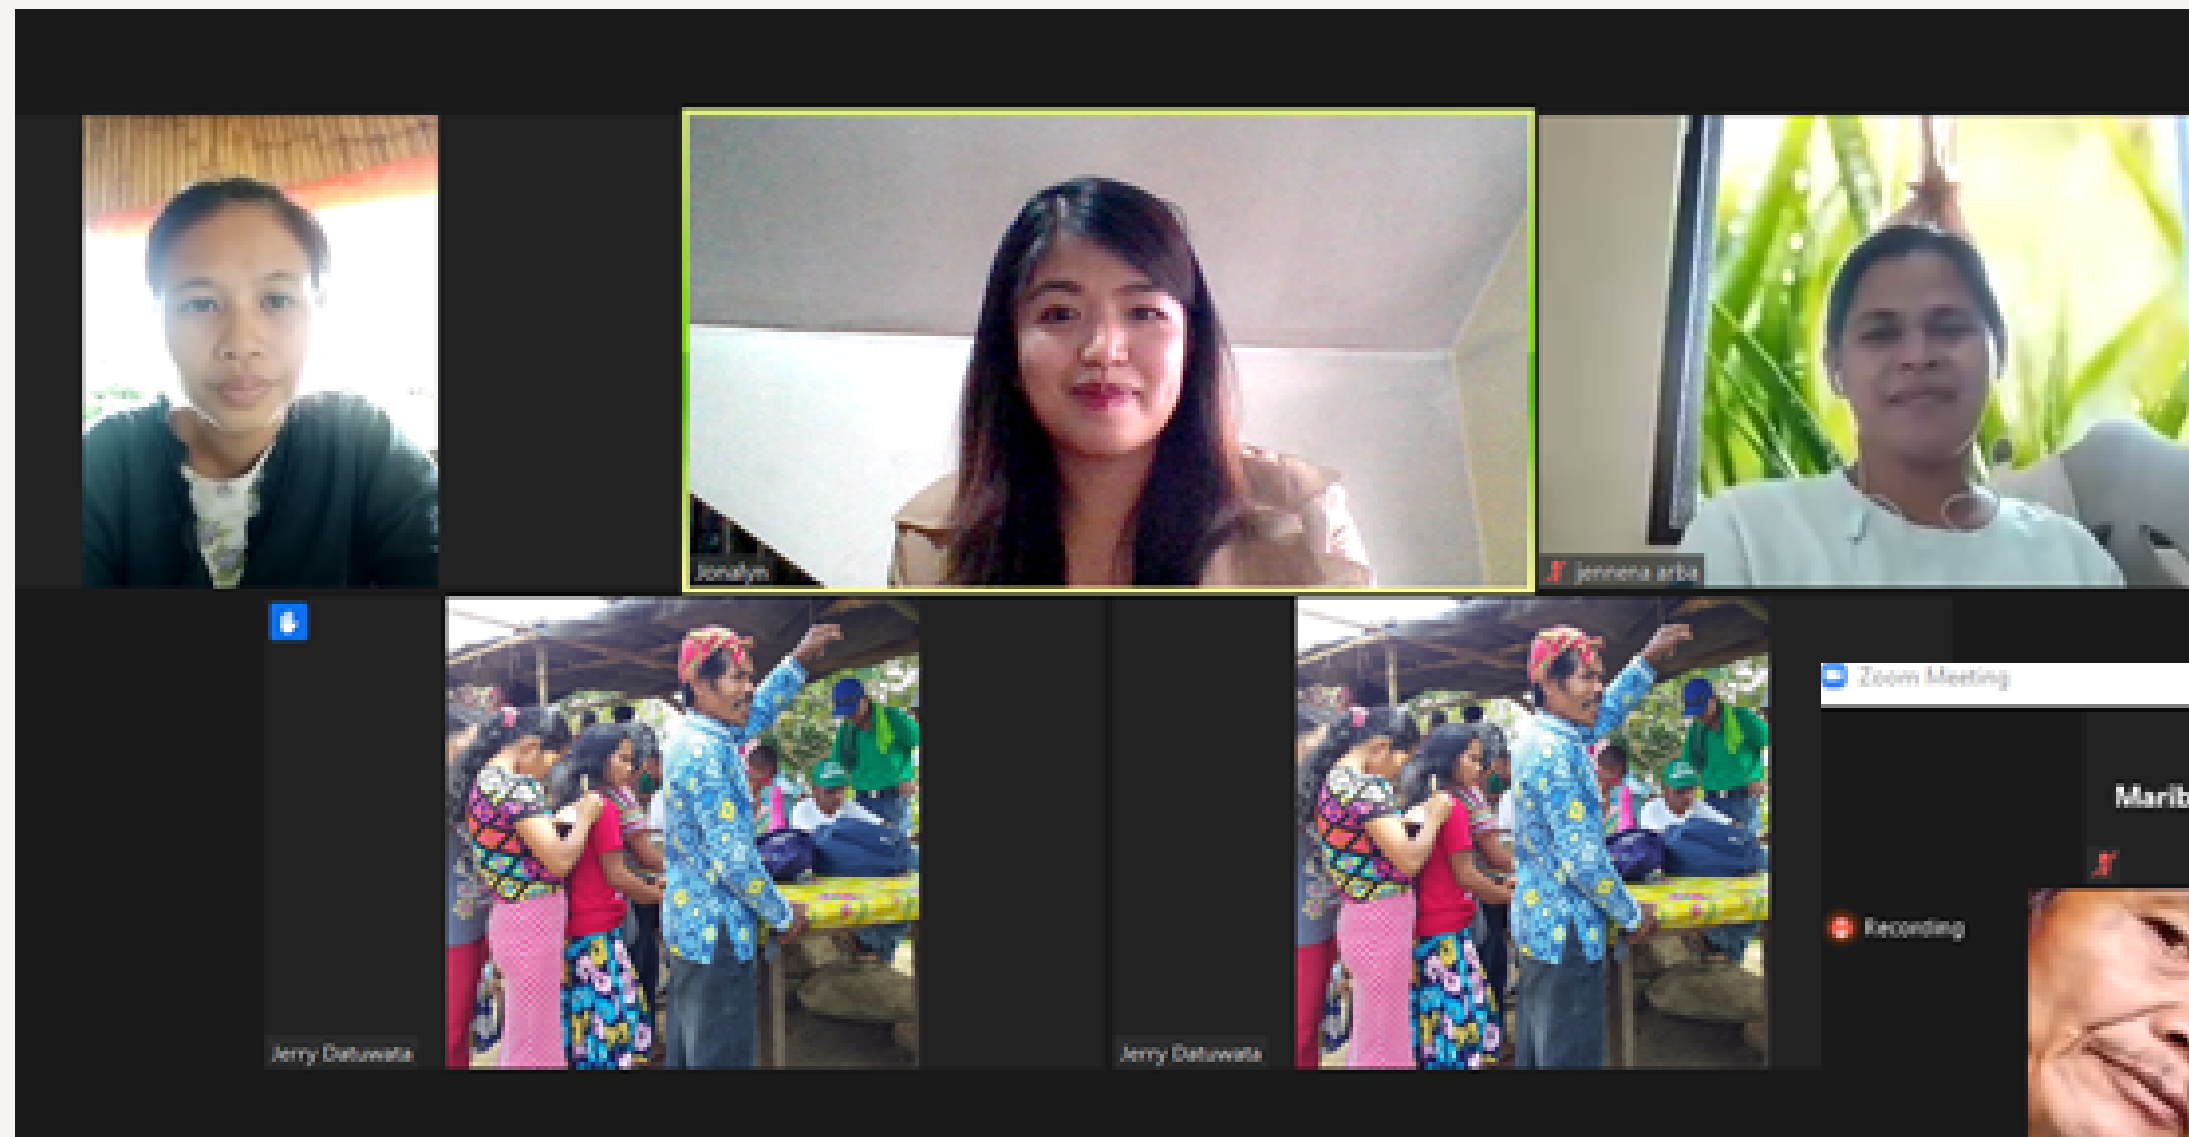

- 2018
- a platform to enhance capacities of second-generation indigenous leaders
- to sustain indigenous peoples organizations, advocacy, political participation, self-determined development, among others

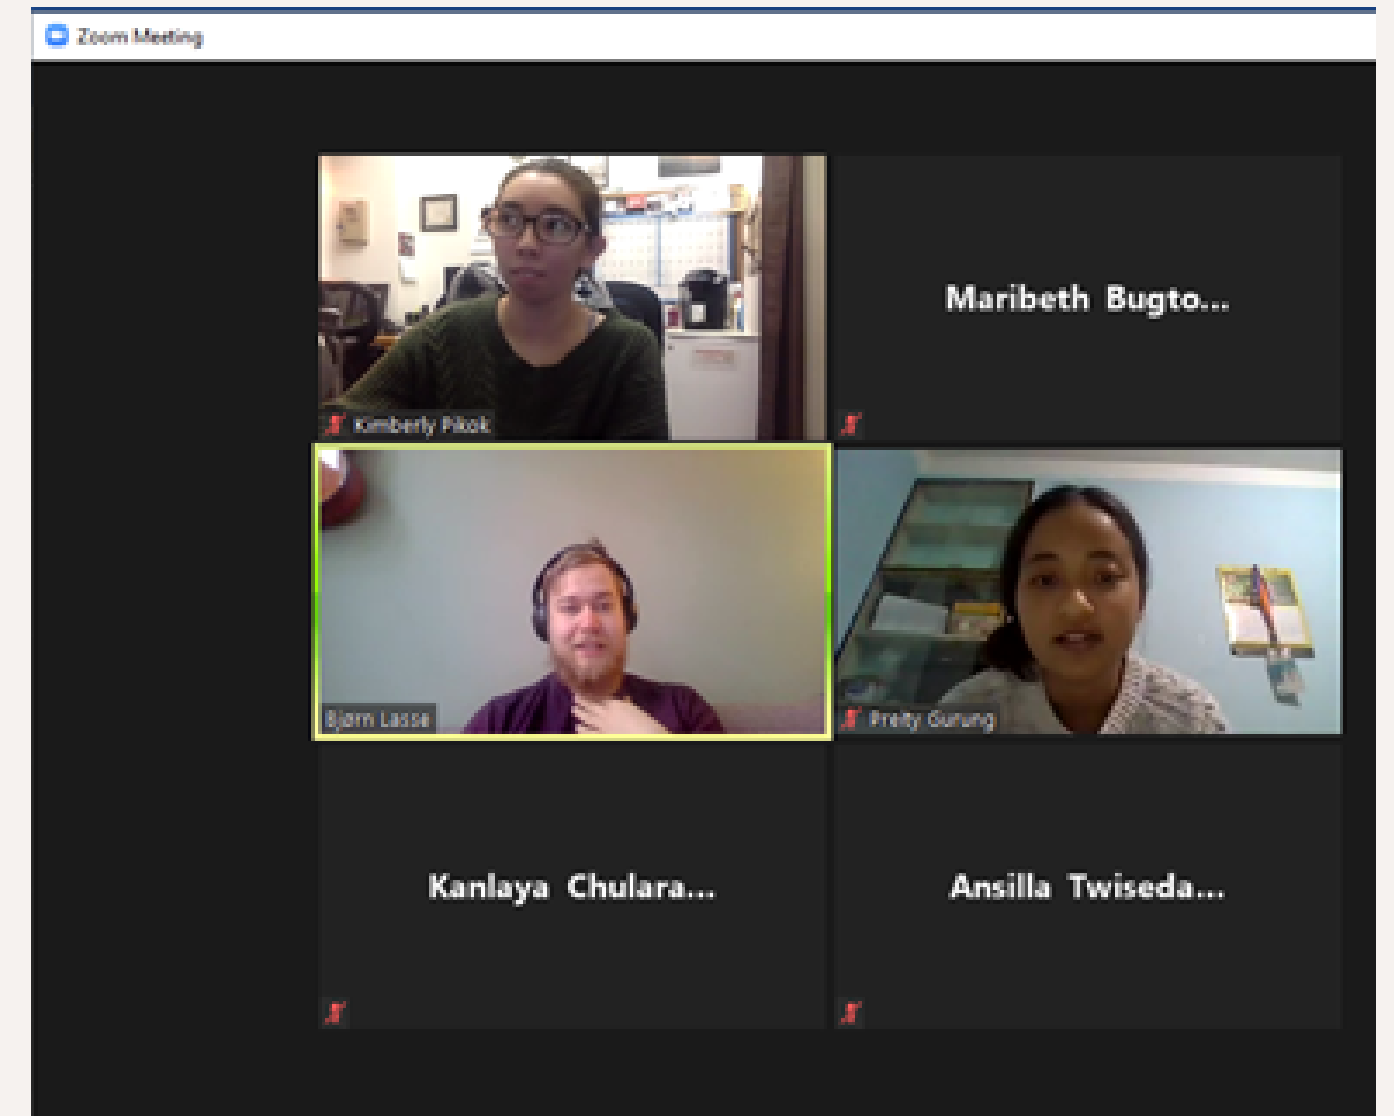

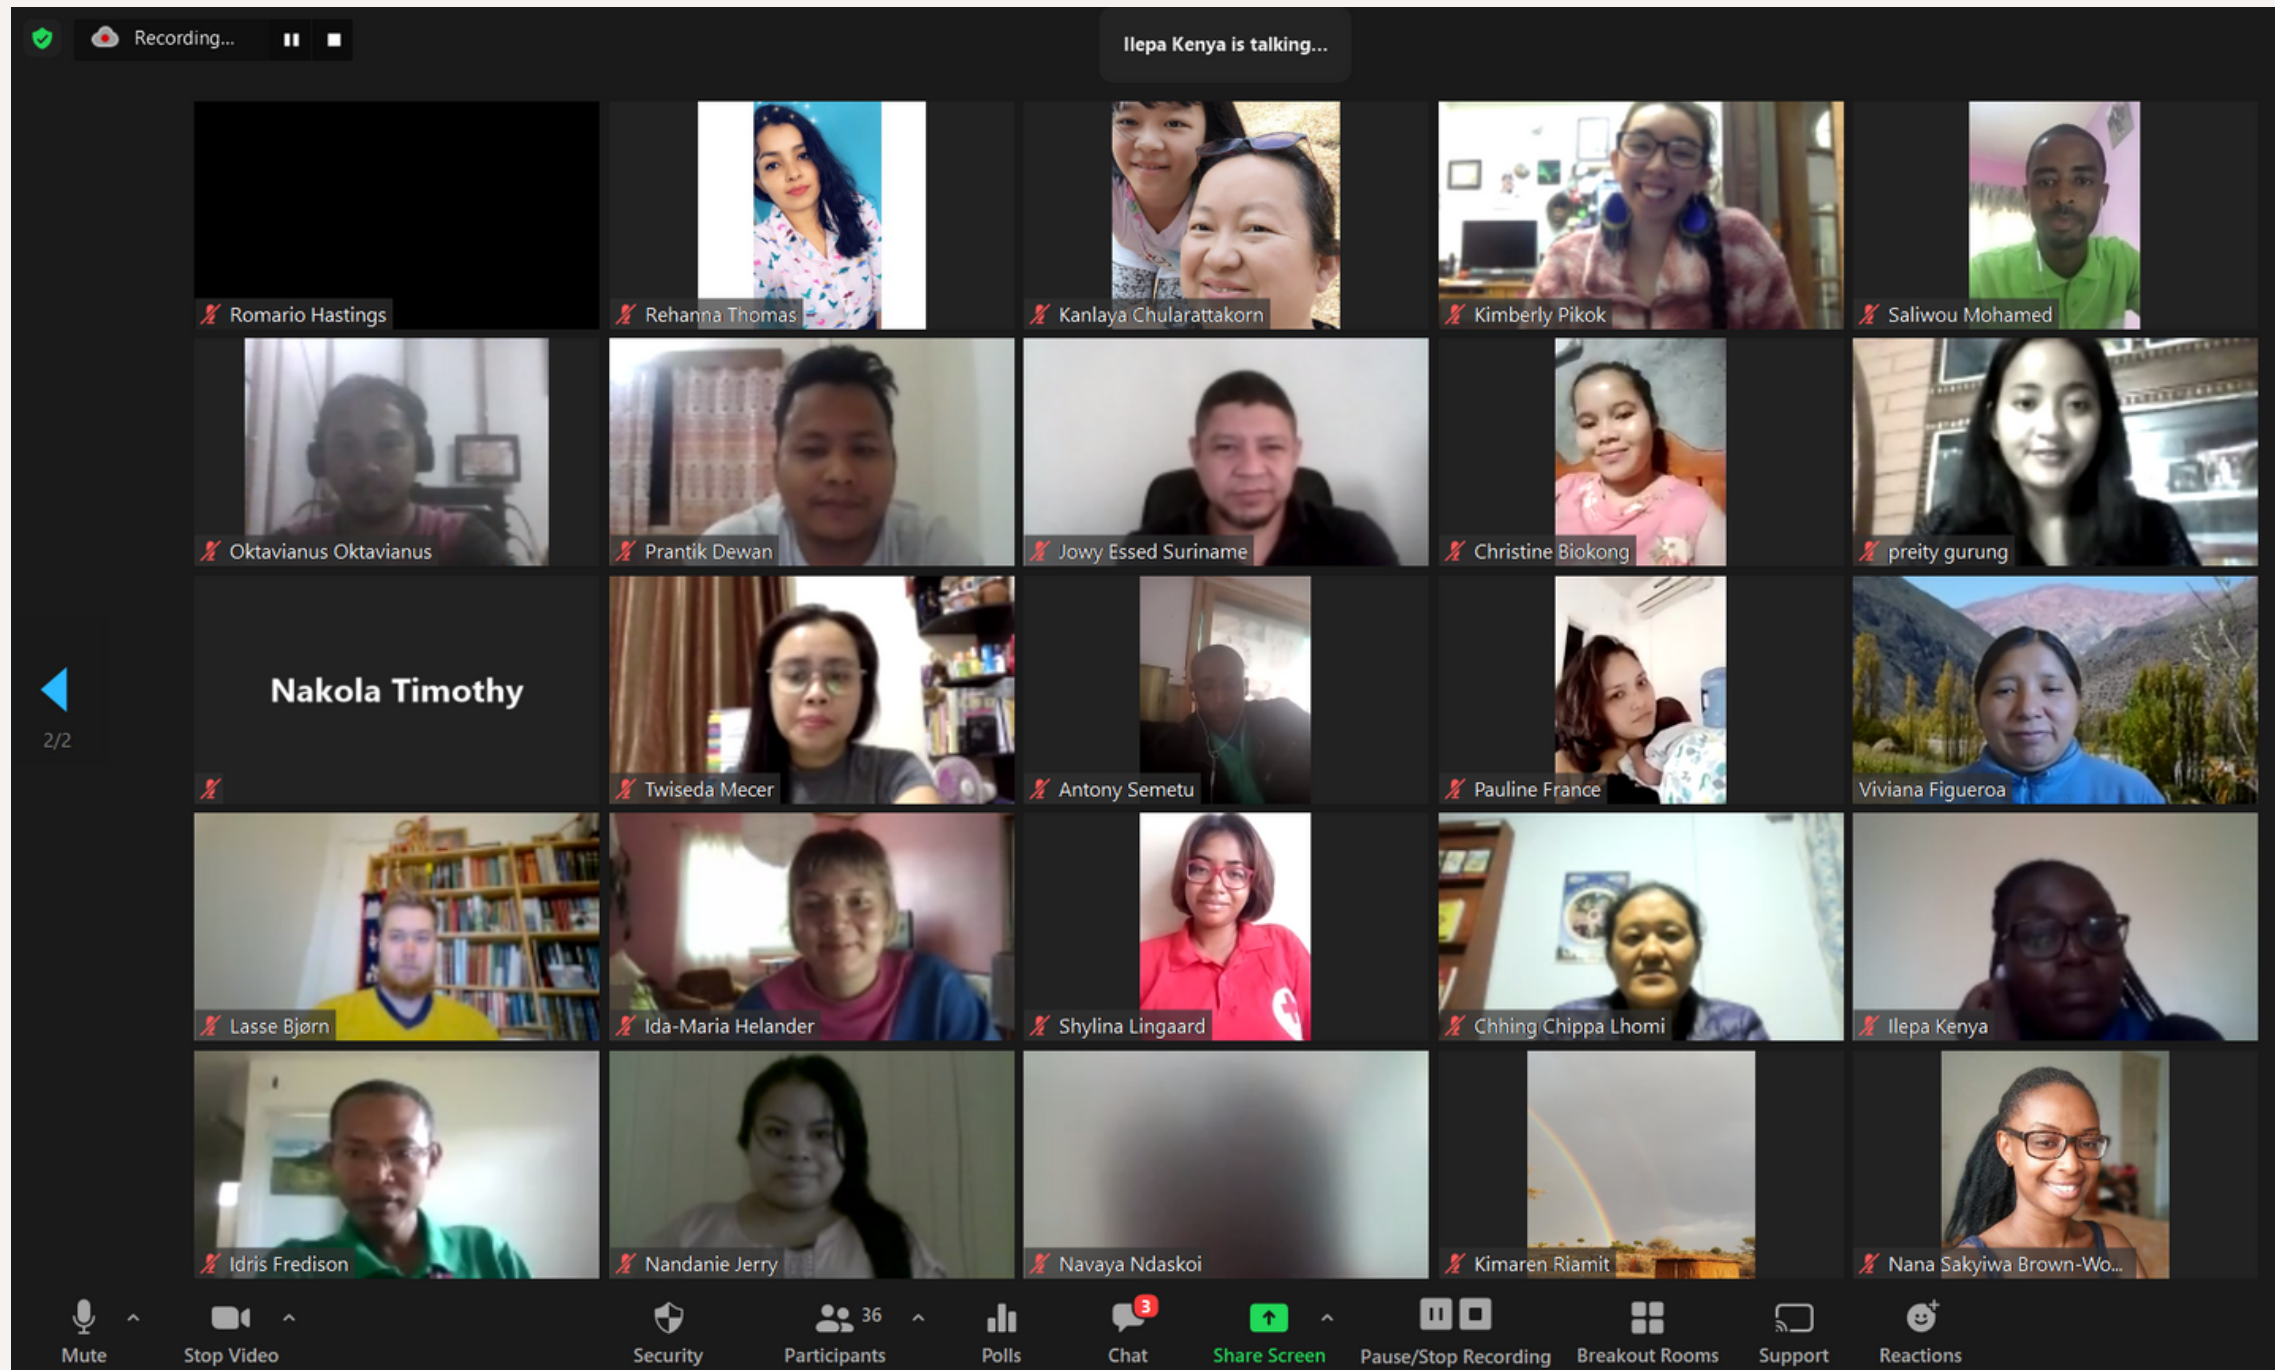

Training of ELATIA Partners

Community finance
management training
in the Philippines

(c) ILEPA

Training on Policy Advocacy in the UN CBD

Impacts

(c) Institut Dayakologi

(c) CHIRAPAQ

(c) MPIDO

“

Women have (been) empowered now. They can talk on issues affecting them and on issues pertaining their rights, and to participate in all decision-making right from the grassroots to the county level and even to the national level which we see as a step forward for our indigenous women.

---

EUNICE NKOPIO

Program Coordinator, Mainyito Pastoralists Integrated Development
Organization (MPIDO)

(c) Helen Magata

LESSONS Learned

Conscious collaboration
enables capacity building initiatives

Mentoring younger generations sustains initiatives for effective advocacy and for sustainable development

Context-based, gender sensitive and culturally-appropriate capacity building materials and approaches respond to needs of communities

Deliberate integration of resources for capacity building ensures continuing learning and skills development

Continuing exploration of methodologies to make the virtual training more effective

More resources and new skills are needed to enable indigenous peoples to adapt to new learning methodologies

CHALLENGES

Language

Multiple burdens of women

Lack of resources to access and use ICTs

Limited knowledge on using online platforms for meetings and education

COVID-19 pandemic

Imposed community quarantines

Travel restrictions

Lack of adequate and appropriate facilities for Internet connectivity

RECOMMENDATIONS

Continuing use and exploration of approaches that consider the varying contexts of indigenous communities particularly at this time, and which are gender-sensitive and culturally-appropriate

Allocation of resources for translation and interpretation as well as development of appropriate learning materials

Provision of appropriate communications and information technologies to indigenous peoples

Revitalizing indigenous political governance structures and institutions for capacity building

<https://www.tebtebba.org/index.php/what-we-do/elatia-ips-training-institute>

elatia.indigenous@gmail.com

Elatia Training Institute
@elatiatraininginstitute